○Profile

He has been consulting small and medium sized manufacturers in Japan for over 20 years. He has over 14 years of experience in Zen meditation and over 7 years of experience in Vipassana meditation. He specializes in Zen-based coaching for executives and CEOs. He coaches CEOs using Zen and mindfulness based awareness and dialogue in VR space.

The international conference on Zen and mindfulness, Zen2.0, which he founded with four of his friends as a way of "thanking" Zen for helping him, has grown into the world's largest international conference, connecting Europe, Japan, and the United States online.

He started his career at Fujitsu Limited and earned a Master's degree in Media and Governance (Strategic innovation theory) from Keio University. After leaving Fujitsu, he joined a venture company, but was laid off due to the financial crisis in 2008. To recover from the shock, he practiced zazen every morning. His experience of taking care of his mind through zazen and coming up with new business ideas led him to practice innovation management methods using mindfulness "zenschool®", and in September 2017, he launched the world largest global conference on the Zen & Mindfulness "Zen2.0" at Kenchoji Temple in Kita-Kamakura. It has been running for six years.

He is co-founder of Zen2.0, a conference on Zen and mindfulness that attracts speakers from around the world. He is working to make Kamakura a mindful city where Zen and IT are combined. He is the author of two books "Let's Start Micro-Monozukuri" and "True Innovation," how to create innovation through Zen-like dialogue.

His company's mission is to create new innovations in society by transforming the minds of political, corporate, and social change executives using traditional and authentic philosophies and methods such as Zen and mindfulness and new technologies such as trans-tech and Metaverse, Virtual reality.

The book "True Innovation" is for innovators who want to create business innovations. What is important to create truly innovative (True Innovation) unparalleled is passion rather than logic. "What I really want to do (what I want)" that exists only in the mind of an individual is highly unique, different from the result of market research. However, the passion of "true" tends to be hazy because it is hampered by factors such as standing position and prejudice in individual society, there are knacks to find. And the trick was in Zen questioning.

This book exposes a method for authors who have produced a number of successful innovators in "Innovation Creation Course" that emphasizes "dialogue" called "zenschool" to find "true excitement". What is the "dialogue" technology that produces achievement-producing innovation that was taken up in the "dawn of Nikkei Special Gaia" (TV Tokyo)? The commentary is Professor Takashi Maeno of "Happiness Science" "Innovation Research" (Keio Professor of the Graduate School of System Design and Management, University of Tokyo.
